Buenos Aires goes way deeper than the tired "Paris of South America" cliché. Sure, it's got lively cafés spilling onto the sidewalk, a wealth of Belle Epoque architecture, and grand leafy avenues leading to flowering urban parks. But Buenos Aires wouldn't be the dynamic capital city it is without the native Argentines and immigrant Portenos who call it home and make it distinctly Buenos Aires. Local passions run deep, whether it's for asado, tango, literature, art, or fashion. Paris could never. Argentina Standard Time Buenos Aires is a lively metropolis, and there's something to see and do all year round. Futbol (soccer) season runs from January until May and August until mid-December. Argentina's La Triple Corona, triple crown, runs from September until the end of the year. Travel might be tricky during Semana Santa, the Holy Week of Easter, when Argentina all but shuts down while residents travel to visit family and attend religious services. The city hosts an international tango festival in mid-August. Currency: Argentine Pesos (Check the current exchange rate) Language: Spanish I don't speak Spanish: No hablo Espanol/Castellano. (Argentines call their Spanish Castellano to specify its regional roots in Castilla, Spain.) I'm lost: Estoy perdido. I would like...: Me gustaria... Calling Code: +54 (Argentina) 11 (Buenos Aires) Buenos Aires has a dependable metro/subway called Subte. Six lines connect commercial, tourist, and residential areas in the city. Trains run every three to 10 minutes depending on the line. To travel by bus or subte in Buenos Aires, you'll need to get a rechargeable SUBE travel card. Buenos Aires has 40,000 licensed taxis and Uber access. The city is also walkable, though construction and dog droppings can make some streets difficult to pass. Want to go by bike? Buenos Aires has a free bike-share. Courtesy of Four Seasons Address: Posadas 1086/88, Buenos Aires 1011 ABB ArgentinaPhone: +54 11 4321-1200Website The Four Seasons Hotel Buenos Aires does the chain proud. The luxury hotel is housed in a Belle Epoque mansion and connected by immaculate gardens and two swimming pools. Sophisticated suites can feature stand alone soaking bathtubs and glass chandeliers. The real action is down at the polo-inspired Pony Line bar. Oh, and Madonna stays here. Courtesy of Faena Hotel Address: Calle Martha Salotti 445, Buenos Aires 1107BDA ArgentinaPhone: +54 11 4010-9070Website Faena Hotel Buenos Aires (or The Faena, as the locals call it) is the most distinct hotel in Buenos Aires. Designed by Philippe Starck of the Delano in South Beach and The Mondrian in Los Angeles, the Faena is eye-catching on every level. Expect arabescato bathrooms and hand embroidered throws in rooms punched up with red details. The chic urban-style pool is styled with sculpture art in the water. Downstairs, El Cabaret presents a sultry tango show in the red velvet bar. Courtesy of Alvear Palace Address: Av. Alvear 1891, Buenos Aires 1129AAA ArgentinaPhone: + 54 11 4808-2100Website Old-school luxury that has charmed Presidents, Hollywood celebrities, and rock stars since the hotel opened in 1932 has been updated for the tastes of this century. Score: 93.00. Courtesy of Park Hyatt Address: 1661 Alvear Avenue, Buenos Aires C1014AAD ArgentinaPhone: +54 11 5171-1234Website Built by an English Argentine railway executive, this Tudor Revival mansion dates to the late 1800s and underwent a $74 million renovation when Hyatt bought the building. Thank the Duhau family for the additional Neoclassical building modeled after Le Château du Marais. Today, the property is the definition of luxury with travertine marble bathrooms, crystal chandeliers, and Belle Epoque gardens. Address: Calle Honduras 5860 Palermo Hollywood, Buenos Aires C1414BNJ ArgentinaPhone: + 54 11 4779-1006Website Ever imagined what it would be like to live like one of Argentina's coolest artists? Book a room at Palermo's biggest boutique hotel: the Home Hotel. Formerly a private mansion, today the upgraded style includes Scandinavian design, vintage French wallpaper, and Saarinen furnishings. The solar-power heated swimming pool is one of the city's best outdoor spaces. Home writes an in-house city guide for guests. Address: Thames 1101, Buenos Aires 1414, ArgentinaPhone: +54 11 4772-4911Website Sarkis is a family-style Middle Eastern restaurant that's just the place to start a night out. Small plates of succulent lamb, marinated eggplant, and flaky nut pastries arrive willy-nilly, but it's part of the charm. The wandering belly dancers and coffee ground readers are a good distraction between courses. Real Armenian coffee will keep you awake until the discotheque closes. Reservations accepted one week in advance. Indoor and outdoor sidewalk dining. Address: Calle Cavia 2985, Buenos Aires C1425DDA ArgentinaPhone: +54 11 4809-8600Website La Cocina is inside of Casa Cavia, a high end retail/restaurant concept in Palermo, and one of the hardest reservations to book in Buenos Aires. In keeping with the creative vibes, La Cocina has an incredibly diverse and artistic seasonal food and cocktail menu. The interior alone is reason enough to visit. Inspired by 1920s cafes, it features white marble, brass, and antique mirrors— while still staying fresh and airy. If you can't get into dinner, a breakfast of dulce de leche baked goods is almost as good. Dinner reservations recommended. Indoor and garden seating. Address: Cabrero 5099, Palermo, Buenos Aires ArgentinaPhone: +54 11 4832-5754Website There are lots of reasons Travel + Leisure named La Cabrera one of the best steakhouses in the world. The steak is just one of them. The asador (grill man) working a firebox filled with red-hot embers and racks of cow are another. Located in Palermo and overflowing with atmosphere, La Cabrera serves huge slabs of seasoned meat that are seared and cooked to perfection. Don't skip the sweetbreads. The exact same menu is served down the block at La Cabrera Norte, a location built just to handle the overflow. Dinner reservations are accepted, but not always honored. Indoor and outdoor seating available. Address: Calle Gral Simon Bolivar 866, Buenos Aires C1066AAR ArgentinaPhone: +54 11 4040-2411Website Don't leave Buenos Aires without sampling an array of empanadas. Though the hand-held street food is everywhere, finding empanadas with good dough texture and perfectly seasoned fillings can be a challenge. El Banco Rojo delivers both, with flavors like blood sausage, pancetta, and asparagus. Pair yours with a bottle of Rubia craft beer. This is a hip counter service casual spot with picnic table and stool seating. Reservations not accepted. Indoor and covered outdoor seating available. Address: Avda Presidente Quintana 188, Recoleta Buenos Aires C1014ACO ArgentinaPhone: +54 9 11 4024-6376Website If you want a glamorous night out in Recoleta, Presidente Bar is your spot. Every detail is carefully thought out to build a cosmopolitan vibe that's very fun: the music, the lighting, the staff—it's all on point. The glowing back-lit bar, high ceilings, and hanging chandelier evoke a classic era. Seba Garcia, the Creative Director, creates seasonal cocktail menus to match and make cocktail trends. The food is sexy sushi. Step through the bookshelves and back in time to the '80s speakeasy bar. Reservations recommended. Outdoor seating available. Jose Luis Suerte/Courtesy of @travelbuenosaires Address: Junin 1760, Buenos Aires C1113 ArgentinaPhone: N/AWebsite Visiting Buenos Aires and not paying homage to Eva Peron's grave in La Recoleta Cemetery is sacrilegious. Evita aside, wandering through the above ground tombs and religious symbols in this National Historic Landmark is a memorable experience. Address: Calle Martha Salotti 445, Buenos Aires 1107BDA ArgentinaPhone: +54 11 4952-4111Website Okay, so a tango show is touristy. But the Rojo Tango Show inside the sexy Faena Hotel is touristy done right. It's intimate, fun, and might inspire a tango lesson or trip to a local milonga. Address: Valle Iberlucea del Dr. and Magallanes, Buenos Aires 1065 ArgentinaWebsite Strolling down historical and colorful Caminito (little path, in Spanish) is like visiting an outdoor art gallery. If tango dancers and bargain souvenirs hawkers frequented art galleries. Address: Brandsen 805 La Boca , Buenos Aires 1161AAQ ArgentinaPhone: +54 11 4309-4700Website If you're a soccer (futbol) fan, then La Bombonera is church. Alvear 1680, Buenos Aires C1014 AAQ ArgentinaPhone: +54 11 4311-5360Website Visiting Fueguia 1833 is an Argentinian sensory experience. The perfumery is inspired by founder Julian Bedel's travels throughout Patagonia. Pro tip: the handcrafted candles make perfect gifts. Courtesy of @travelbuenosaires Address: Avenida Santa Fe 1860, Buenos Aires C1123AAN ArgentinaPhone: +54 11 4813-6052Website Buenos Aires has a serious literary scene. Celebrate it at El Ateneo Grand Splendid, housed in a grand theater built in 1919. The enormous space is now packed floor-to-ceiling with books and ornate original fixtures. The former stage now houses a cafe. Recoleta and Palermo remain the reigning king and queen of Buenos Aires neighborhoods. Palermo is hip and artsy with boutique hotels and trendy cafes. Recoleta is classic Argentina with luxury hotels, glamorous bars, and cosmopolitan culture. Villa Crespo, the barrio just southwest of Palermo, is the up and coming prince. The former shoe factory worker neighborhood is now attracting artists and nightlife to its cobbled streets. Buenos Aires has a warm and temperate climate. Remember, the seasons are opposite to that of the northern hemisphere. You won't see snow, but expect about four days of rain per month. June is generally the driest month, and March is the wettest. January is the hottest month with an average temperature of 86°F (30°C). July is the coldest with an average temperature of 44°F (7°C). No matter the time of year, nights are always chillier.
